

Who am I?

I am Almudena Moreno Borrallo, a PhD researcher in the School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences, of which I am the Postgraduate Representative, and an active member of PWO Trinity. Much like all in PWO, I stand unquestionably for full implementation of all basic rights for PhD researchers and Postgraduate Researchers (PGRs) in Trinity College.

What will I do?

My primary goal is to work towards ensuring workers' rights, maternity and paternity leave, sick leave, a living wage, and non-EU and disabled rights for every single PhD and PGR in Trinity.

We need to stand up against discrimination and for our rights. If I am elected, I will stand for one of Trinity's most neglected communities – PhD researchers.

The PWO is the only organisation that is made by PGRs for PGRs. Though PGRs are teachers, markers, invigilators, and researchers that drive most of Trinity's education, we are denied some of the most basic human rights. In the PWO, we work to ensure our basic rights are met and we can have a full life with dignity.

Sincerely,
Almu
